POLICE, JAIL, GRAND JURY

Bomb Shelters for "Nerve" Centers

A Warning for Civilian Defense

The county grand jury has rendered an interim report on the conditions preceding and following the city jail fire where inmates lost their lives and some were wounded. Much of the blame rests squarely on the mayor, the city council and the city manager, only a small part on the police or the coroner's jury making the post mortem inquest. It is the Mayor, Manager and Council who decide the policies, appropriate the funds and direct the conduct of the jail.

I am again calling attention to the short railing on the second tier of the jail blocks. A policeman can easily be toppled over by being pushed against that railing. And again we must realize that a master device to open up all the cells with one pull is imperative if during bombings and fires the cell inmates are not to be sacrificed again.

But that is small potatoes now. The grand jury should be looking into a more important aspect of civilian defense "nerve" centers located on the bay front. Nobody is stupid enough to imagine that the Japs and the Nazis don't have a blueprint of the locations. The day is not far distant when our forces are going to bombard Japan day after day. Then the Japs and perhaps the Nazis will have to retaliate to "save face" and suicide squads like the British "commando forces" will make unexpected sorties on our shores or else, even at great sacrifice, we are going to be bombed.

Experience has demonstrated that concrete and steel buildings with many overlaying floors offer a certain amount of bomb shelter and safety. But bungalow type buildings, like the police station, are simply suicide quarters. Whats wrong with the responsible men in charge that they don't think for the future? Telephone headquarters for important "nerve" centers should be located in underground bombproof shelters or in buildings where the H.Q. would be protected by several layers of overhead concrete and steel flooring.

Civic Center building proves itself again to have been located in the wrong place. The navy hospital has not been erected on the harbor front, even though the marine base and other facilities are near the water. The Civic Center building should have been in the park also, especially all the records. The harbor front is the first to be threatened during a raid.

The telephone exchanges also should be located in rooms & places where they would be removed from the harbor vicinity as well as protected by several overhead floors of steel and concrete.

For obvious reasons I am not going into details. It is sufficient to have pointed out the main defects and the remedies.

When the jail fire occured some well meaning reader bawled me out for not having repeated my warnings after saying it once; now again I sound the tocsin—while action has to be taken by those in authority.

"LET NOTHING DETER YOU — — — "

Dear Mr. de Aryan:

Let me tell you that I think you are the most courageous American editor in California, if not in the entire country. America is proud of Her sons and daughters that take a stand for this Republic and keep it. That is the point, to KEEP IT!

Let nothing deter you in your battle for the right, keep up the good fight and do not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flies by day, for He shall give His angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways.

This country needs men of your stamina and ability in Congress and also in the White House, so stay on the path.

And may God be with you always,
Yours for America,
A — — — , Washington.

The American Way

The New York Times' editorial treatment of the suppression of Social Justice strikes us as a perfect example of the self-created dilemma of those who want suppression and the preservation of the Bill of Rights too. Consider these curiously contradictory thoughts in the same editorial:

These views (of Social Justice), if generally accepted, would impair the unity of the American people, spread distrust of our leaders and their motives, and assist the cause of our enemies. If they are to prevail we should lose the war, and with it our liberties—including the liberty of the press and of speech. It is perfectly natural, therefore, that most Americans should experience a sense of relief that the news that Postmaster General Walker, on the initiative of Attorney General Biddle, has suspended the Coughlin magazine's mailing privileges. The provocation has been outrageous.

At the same time we must remember that the American people in the past have had a way of answering lies with truth, hate with tolerance, incitements to civil strife by a united front to the enemy of mankind. They have never strayed far or long from the principles of the Declaration, the Bill of Rights, and the Gettysburg Address.

In these circumstances we must ask ourselves how far we can go in the direction of the suppression of opinion, even opinion as filthy as that expressed in Social Justice, unless the facts of the case warrant the direct charge of sedition and prosecution on that ground. When we suppress or hamstring opinion on any other ground, we set a dangerous precedent.

One might almost suspect that the parts of the editorial were written by different persons, or at the very least, by a single person with a split personality—schizophrenia, the psychiatrists call it. One personality experiences a "sense of relief" that Social Justice has been suppressed because "the provocation has been outrageous". The other warns against the suppression of "even opinion as filthy as that expressed in Social Justice" unless there is evidence to support a direct charge of sedition.

The Times' dilemma is doubtless the dilemma of a great many sincere Americans who hate what Social Justice stands for, but hate, too, embarking on a program of suppression whose limits no man can mark once the forces of bigotry and intolerance are unleashed by the government itself.

The arbitrary suspension of the mailing privileges of Social Justice constitute a finding of guilt before a trial is had, and, as the American Civil Liberties Union pointed out, creates a dangerous precedent which holds the threat of arbitrary censorship over any periodical delivered through the mails.

Fundamentally there is but one fool-proof, American way of dealing with the situation, and that is, as the Times said so well, by "answering lies with truth, hate with tolerance, incitements to civil strife by a united front to the enemy of mankind."
—La Follette's "Progressive".

The anti-Christ forces of the earth are making active war on Christianity all over the earth. Christian martyrdom is steadily becoming more common and religious liberty is fading from the earth.—Herald, Hot Springs, N. M.

It seems strange to me, that such steps are contemplated, that I am to be made an object of political as well as private animosity and that your administration is being used to frighten me and suppress me, if possible, because I dare disagree consistently with the policies of your administration as well as with many of the activities of members of your family in public life. I came to the U. S. A. with the understanding that here we have room enough to disagree and still be loyal to the fundamental cause of individual liberty and the common cause of the nation.

I understand freedom of the press to imply that one may criticize you personally and your administration politicially and still be loyal to the nation. In fact, I continue to maintain that this is the only way of being loyal wherever and whenever one discovers an error in the conduct of our public affairs.

I would hardly suppose that you consider yourself infallible and that you subscribe to the doctrine of "lese majeste" or the old English attitude that the King can do no wrong; why, then, do your subordinates act as if such were the case and that anyone with the temerity to disagree must be hunted down and suppressed?

During the present conflict in which Jeanette Rankin's was the only vote cast against the declaration of a state of war with Japan, our publication expressed its stand editorially, that the lady while voting her convictions, and as such is to be respected for her courage, nevertheless, was lacking in the sense of realism, for had we sat in congress we would have been bound to vote AYE in the acknowledgment of a fait accompli.

It is inconceivable to us that with such clear expression of our own attitude and the testimony of men who have known us and are sticking their necks out publicly to vouch for our integrity, we are still subject to persecution as soon as we announce our candidacy for Congress.

Hoping that you will order an immediate inquiry into this matter before further steps are foolishly taken to impede the free course of elections for Congress, to satisfy the personal animosities of certain people, I shall send copies of this letter to various members of Congress, the Senate and others to call attention how a reign of frightfulness is misdirected in its intent.

Perhaps point 7 in our platform might throw some light.

Sincerely,
C. LEON de ARYAN.

Sales vs Business License Tax

BETWEEN THE DEVIL AND THE DEEP BLUE SEA

City Attorney's office dug up the "law" and through its Deputy Wm. H. Macomber reported to the city council that a sales tax, by ordinance, might have hard sailing, legally, if enacted to bring in additional revenue for the raise in salaries and wages for certain city employees. In its place the suggestion was advanced that a business license tax, or occupational tax, could be safely imposed on the gross revenue of the occupation or profession, in other words, a gross income tax.

City Manager Cooper expressed the idea of a general salestax by claiming that newcomers to San Diego who are working in defense industries at better wages than they got at home, are not contributing to the support of city government by direct taxation, therefore a salestax would "catch them". When "newcomers" don't pay direct taxes, they nevertheless pay indirect taxes which are contained in the rents they pay and the things they buy. They pay the taxes of all those whom they patronize in proportion as they spend money. Why spoof such nonsense about not contributing to the support of city government, Mr. Cooper? You know better if you are worth $12,000 a year and now want $15,000. At least show some trace of intellectual honesty.

The fact is plain, the city wants more money. The simplest way would be to ask the federal government to pay the money, since everybody is involved in this war and everybody pays for it and the new deeds are the result of this war. But because the city cannot cajole any more money out of Uncle Sam since it appears to have been deserted by its congressman & senators, the council is trying to high-jack more donations from the consumers by a salestax. It's a matter of robbing Peter to pay Paul.

With the present interference by freezing rents and prices one could not fall back on the Single-Tax theory of increased landvalues and rents without splitting hairs, while the business-tax naturally will not be passed on to consumers where prices are frozen and so some more businesses will be throttled. The small fellow gets annihilated.

There is one source that has not been tapped: Non-interest bearing bonds. Take the profit out of war financing and there will be no wars.

NEW YORK, May -7—The other night in a fashionable Fifth avenue restaurant one of the more objectionable of the European "refugees" was acting as host at a large and expensive dinner party.

The money used to pay for that and other dinners was amassed by the objectionable European "refugee" in question in Paris before the German invasion, when he traded upon the misfortune of the French and used the scarcity of foodstuffs in France to establish the largest and most successful of the "black markets" along the Seine.

"Black markets" are the hidden away places where food, denied in rationing, can be purchased from racketeers at exorbitant prices, much in the manner the bootleggers operated in this country during prohibition.

When the Germans took over Paris this "black market" operator, with his ill-gotten gains, fled in fear of his life to this country.

Here in New York he lives in a lavish apartment and entertains for a group of social hangers-on.

Let's hope the day never will come when this war will bring about the secret establishment here of "black markets". Some say this objectionable European "refugee" already has plans set to open up in the United States of America—if and when.

Certainly Americans want none of him. They had their taste of gangsterism during prohibition—and didn't like it.—L. A. Examiner.

Who Is Next ?

May 17, 1942.

The President of the U. S. A..
Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Esq.,
The White House.

Sir:

Are we going to have free elections this season?

I am wondering.

Your Attorney General, Francis Biddle, has had all the opportunity and time since December 7 to call me on the carpet, or take steps to have me indicted for "sedition" because I am an uncompromising anti-New Dealer and anti-Totalitarian and never hesitate to make my position clear, but he hesitated to take steps to suppress my paper, THE BROOM, or have me silenced, till I announced my candidacy for Congress on an 8 point platform which I am hereby separately enclosing.

Suddenly, then, I find myself called before the Federal Grand Jury in Los Angeles and am informed by U. S. Attorney Wm. F. Palmer that I need not testify, even though subpoenaed, unless I desire to do so voluntarily, since I am being investigated under the suspicion of being Nazi financed and my testimony might be used against me.

I do not mind being investigated, have in fact been investigated by every conceivable agency during the years past and present and will continue to be investigated, being such an oddity and contrast in that I keep my oath of allegiance to the "horse and buggy" constitution and don't consider it mere "campaign oratory"; naturally that makes me an object of profound suspicion whether the Nazis paid me to bring out the contrast during your administration.

What I am objecting to is the interference with my candidacy for Congress from the 23rd district. If I am a dangerous character and disloyal and in the pay of the Nazis, then, your FBI, the military and naval intelligence, the sheriff and police, all of them have been derelict in their duties to have permitted me to roam around so freely in this strategic city at such a critical period in the history of our country.

But if I am not a dangerous character, but merely one of those "crackpots" who take an oath seriously and consider the constitution the supereme law of the country notwithstanding your letter to Sen. Guffey to the effect that he should not permit "reasonable doubts about constitutionality" to restrain him from pushing his "coal bill" through congress as was quoted in the congressional record,—then, I object to being terrorized and unfavorably publicized as soon as I am announcing my candidacy for congress.

I am enclosing a copy of THE BROOM of March 23, in which prominent public and private citizens attest to my quality of character and citizenship. Men who hold high office in this city and are leaders in business, men who know me personally and not from hearsay.

I am also enclosing a copy of THE BROOM of May 18, giving you detailed information as to what steps have been taken already to intimidate me as a candidate for congress. At this writing, perhaps, your Attorney General has a transcript of the procedures on his desk and might shortly, upon that basis, instruct the Los Angeles Grand Jury to proceed with an indictment under the sedition act of 1917.

"de Aryan Comments"

(Over KGB, Thursday night, 9:45, May 21)

$100 Registration Fee

I have invited Mrs. de Aryan to assist me in tonight's program. This is the last of the present series of "de Aryan Comments" over KGB. My contract with the radio station expires tonight and in place of renewing it, I shall use the same facilities and time schedule to promote my political candidacy for Congress from the 23rd district.

I have appointed Mrs. de Aryan to act as my deputy in filling out my nomination papers with 60 signatures of Republican voters. If you wish to sign my nomination petition you will have to be registered Republican and I would appreciate it very much to have you get in touch with Mrs. de Aryan to save her running around, by dropping her a line to our Box 349, East San Diego, remember East San Diego, Box 349, her name is Genevieve, or else phone Randolph 2874. When the 60 signatures of registered Republican voters are affixed, then I have to pay $100 registration fee, which is deposited with the county registrar to be turned over to the Secretary of State at Sacramento. That is a lot of money for me to pay out; but the times are such that we need independent men in Congress so badly that I simply will have to do it at any price.

A RUBBER STAMP CONGRESS

VEIVA—Did you notice the editorial which appeared in yesterday's San Diego UNION about Congress and the Gas Cards?

KOSTI—What points interested you in particular?

VEIVA— "A great deal of unnecessary hullabaloo has been raised because a number of senators and congressmen have obtained "X" cards, which entitle them to an unlimited supply of gasoline . . . But the uproar has brought up a question of far greater importance than any that might be involved in a discussion of whether special gasoline privileges are in order. It has to do with what is the matter with congress. Are its members losing their prestige and if so to what extent, and why? . . . It began several years ago, when without discussion or debate, the members began their program of appeasement and the surrender of their duties and obligations to the executive branch of the government. Nobody took away from congress any of its powers. Its members surrendered them, and then many had the effrontery to go before the people and proclaim that by so doing they were displaying "unity". They bid for re-election on the sole platform that they had failed to function as representatives of the people who elected them but, instead, had become rubber stamps .. . ."

KOSTI—That is exactly why I am in the race for congress. Nobody will be able to accuse me of being a rubber stamp of the executive. My platform reads: "4—I shall not delegate my office to the executive or other politicians and their subordinates, nor peddle my vote for a mess of patronage."

VEIVA—I know you well enough to realize that you wouldn't be a yes-man in congress, but how would there be "unity" in congress with people like yourself?

KOSTI—Unity must be achieved on the basis of truth and of fact, on the basis of Right and of Principle, not by submitting to ignorant dictates of arbitrary and socialistic theorists and burocrats, of professors who never did a day's work in industry or agriculture but set themselves up as know-alls and mess up the machinery of industry, agriculture and even of government which instead of giving us more ability to defend ourselves gums up the works and creates havoc and poverty among our own people. Unity can be had only by intelligent consideration of all the facts involved and not by cock-eyed theorists who place their own brain-storms and pipe-dreams above the reality of life as we find it in our national effort. Where reason and practice dove-tail, there alone is the end achieved and everybody is benefited. Hasty decisions and rules which conflict with the facts merely weaken our nation, and destroy our abilities to defend ourselves against foreign foes.We must strenghten business and protect the rights of workers and management alike, not by arbitrarily siding with one class against the other. France was ruined by such stupid political partisanship and appeasement policy, we must not repeat it here.

ABOLISH USURY

VEIVA— Number 7 of your platform reads: "I shall propose measures to free the United States from bondage to usury, by immediately refinancing the outstanding debt at the conclusion of peace, to freeze the national debt, that it may not grow over-night, adding interest and compound interest, by issuance of non-interest bearing bonds as Abraham Lincoln financed the war between the states, which is the only constitutional method of issuing money and determining the value thereof." Tell me, please, do you mean to abolish the profit system by abolishing interest and dividend payments?

KOSTI—You are confusing two very distinct and separate financial transactions. Abolishing usury is profitable to the people at large, it strenghtens the profit system. You ought to know me well enough that I am opposed to confiscation of property as well as opposed to any sort of socialism or communism or totalitarianism. As an individualist I favor the profit system and hold that the right to own property is unalienable and not a privilege as some of our supreme court judges seem to think. How then, could I possibly advocate abolition of the profit system when I advocate abolition of usury?

VEIVA— That's exactly why I am asking you to explain this distinction. Some people have asked me about it and I want you to make it clear.

KOSTI—To abolish interest is the same thing as to abolish wages. Every service is worth its hire. A man hires out his service in person and becomes a hired hand as the popular term goes, he gets wages for it; but the same man may hire out his past labors, which he exchanged for money, or for some useful product, for example a car. Suppose you hire the use of my car? Am I entitled to recompense?

VEIVA—I see what you mean. You produced the car, or exchanged it for your labor and other valuables, so you are entitled to get paid for the use of your car, that is interest on your investment.

KOSTI—But suppose I invested the value of the car in cash and I loan you the cash, am I not giving you service, same as if I loaned you the car?

VEIVA—But where does usury come in?

KOSTI—That's an entirely different story. The car or the cash represent actual service which was invested in the ownership of cash or car. I did something of value and exchanged it for other valuables which I lend you and am entitled to a fair wage, like any other person who gives service for wages. But when the government issued bonds by the millions and billions, there was no money in the U. S. A. to buy those bonds with, and pay for them in full.

VEIVA—If there was no money, then perhaps the people who bought the bonds used their credit on which to buy them, didn't they?

KOSTI Exactly, now you hit the nail on the head. The big bankers, the international bankers who are behind the Federal Reserve Bank which is not government owned, but is a private super-organization that has the U. S. monopoly on issuance of bank credit, have used legal credit to buy those bonds with ledgerdemain instead of cash.

VEIVA—What's wrong with that if it's legal?

KOSTI—It is legal allright, but here is how it works. When you buy something on credit from the grocer, do you charge the grocer interest on the credit he gives you and does the grocer have to repay you in full, adding interest to the principal?

VEIVA—I don't understand. If I get credit from the grocer, I would judge that he could charge something extra for the credit he gives me or give me a discount if I paid cash, in place of a charge account, some merchants do that very thing because it saves them the risk and the expense of collection. But certainly I won't expect the grocer to pay me interest on the amount of credit he gives me.

KOSTI—That's plain, I am glad you made it so plain. Now instead of groceries, suppose you were a federal reserve banker who wants to buy bonds from the government on credit, because you have no money to pay cash, there is no money in existence to buy 200 billion dollars worth of bonds. And the government sells you those bonds on credit, why should the government pay you, who are the reserve banker, interest on the amount of credit it gave you?

VEIVA—I see the point you are making, but that is unbelievable.

KOSTI—Nothing unbelievable about it. You know there is not 200 billion dollars worth of cash to buy that many bonds, still, by the end of the year the federal reserve bank will own that many bonds and more on which we, the people, will have to pay interest to those private bankers. So I say, as in the case of the grocer, who gives you merchandise on credit, that since we gave the bankers those bonds on credit and the U.S. Treasury issues them cash when they deposit the bonds as collateral, the bankers should pay us on the service we gave them, just as you said that the grocer is entitled to an extra fee for collection of charge accounts. But since the bankers would not agree to such a thing, the next best thing to do is issue our own non-interest bearing bonds and simply deposit them with the Treasury for the issuance of cash and then when the taxes come in we will have to redeem only the principal and no interest to pay on some money the bankers never had in the first place to loan us. That will save the country from bankruptcy and lower the tax rate on the people.

BOOZE AND DEFEAT

VEIVA—Did you see where the Magazine LOOK in its issue of June 2nd on Page 23, had a picture of your paper as an anti-American publication?

KOSTI—Yes, I saw it. Many people did not realize that I stand for the clean things of life; now the picture of my masthead shows the work I am doing against racketeers and for a healthy nation. The very story they quote in their picture says: Josephus Daniels Was Right About Booze. I say that in this emergency we must not mix booze with gasoline and that Josephus Daniels was right when he made the Navy dry. To win a battle soldiers and sailors must have a clear head. If that is un-American, then I am guilty.

" - - The Whole Truth !"

Hon. Francis J. Biddle,
U.. S. Attorney General,
Washington, D. C.

My Dear Mr. Biddle:-

In Re. mailing permit second class for THE BROOM of San Diego, Calif.

I desire to call your attention to an angle that is not presented to the U. S. Grand Jury, at Los Angeles, Calif. concerning the above caption.

First is that you have shown that you are loyal to the U. S. Constitution about the mailing privilege, and that angle is the people's side who subscribe for the paper and advertise in it. This class has a contract with the Broom, and this class hold that the Constitution protects our rights to the enforcement of this contract and can be annulled only for grave considerations.

The second point that the Grand Jury did not have presented to it was that class hatred, is deeply involved, and political intrigue was not wanting. For instance, the Medical Trust is lined up against the Broom, due to a monetary interest: the money interest is challenged in the Broom, and its servants do not let an opportunity go by where they can snipe any one who dares challenge their right to draw interest which is declared usurious by the Bible from the whole people of the U. S. without a valid consideration issued on their part save a ledger entry, which costs very near nil.

C. Leon de Aryan has announced his candidacy for Congress from the San Diego District. He proposes among other things to: "propose measures to free the U. S. (that means you and me) "from bondage to usury" (which Blackstone holds to be illegal), "by immediately refinancing the outstanding debt at the conclusion of peace, to freeze the National debt, that it may not grow over night, adding interest and compound interest; by issuance of non-interest bearing bonds as Abraham Lincoln financed the war between the states, which is the only constitutional method of issuing money and determining the value thereof."

Now forget not that this kind of an argument frenzies the Bankers and you will be asked in diverse ways and means to cut off this foolish fellow who helps the 98% of the people of this land of freedom, which they have proposed to destroy by an initiative petition circulated here in California to give the tax payers on land to have two votes contrary to all Constitutional government. Would not they WANT HIM REMOVED TO JAIL AND THE BROOM DENIED THE CIRCULATION UNDER GOVERNMENT DICTATION, which would not be submitted to a poll test. If you will do this last thing then we will raise the money to defray the expense to defend him.

The cry by the above parasites on free government that de Aryan receives money from Hitler. Hitler, I assure you would not contribute to the pay of a paper with so small an advertisement list and subscribers list. Nor would he submit to such curt statements as this found repeatedly in the Broom, "Not you, Herr Hitler, but the Lord is my Fuehrer!"—Pastor Martin Niemoeller.

Then last, is my articles on "Bible Study", which the Churches do not like, as they are too democratic in their leaning; But I assure you that none of their priests or preachers will meet these arguments in open debate. For I contend as that able scholar Alexander Campbell did that any man has a right to translate the Sacred Scriptures, as his conscience dictates, guided by that inspiring voice within.

So our prayers now go up, that you may be guided right, in deciding this question on the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

Sincerely,
L. SABIN KENWORTHY.

DEADLY EFFECTS OF SMOKING

"You smoke 30 cigarettes a day?" "Yes, on the average."

"You don't blame them for your run-down condition?" "Not in the least. I blame my hard work."

The physician shook his head. He smiled in a weary way. Then he took a leech out of a glass jar.

"Let me show you something," he said. "Bare your arm."

The smoker bared his pale, thin arm, and the doctor laid the lean, black leech upon it. The leech promptly went to work. Its thin body began to swell. Then a sudden shudder convulsed it and it fell to the floor, dead.

"That's what your poison blood did to the leech," said the physician. He took up the little corpse between his finger and thumb. "Look at it," he said. "Quite dead, you see. Your blood poisoned it to death."

"I guess it wasn't a healthy leech in the first place," said the smoker sullenly.

"Wasn't healthy, eh? we'll try another." And the physician put two more leeches on the young man's thin arm.

"If they both die," said the patient, "I'll swear off—or at least I'll cut down my daily allowance from 30 to 10."

Even as he spoke the smaller leech shivered and dropped on his knee—dead. A moment later the larger one fell beside it—dead.

"This is ghastly," said the young man. "I am worse than the pestilence to these leeches."

"It is the empyreumatic oil (and nicotine) in your blood," said the physician. "All smokers have it."

"Doctor," said the young man, gazing thoughtfully at the three dead leeches, "I half believe you're right."—New Zealand Outlook.

BIBLE STUDY

By L. SABIN KENWORTHY, B. S., D. D., LTD.
Instructor of Translators

"Too Many Cooks - -"

My second instruction to translators, use the original Hebrew and Aramaic Scriptures for translation, and then translate the thought of the Writers. This means leave your own thought out.. The definite and distinct proof of the inspiration of the Hebrew and Aramaic Scriptures lies in the fact that the highest intelligence of man in the time they were written could not receive the thought unaided. Nor could they understand them except by inspiration.

To illustrate, The thought of the first verse of Chapter 1 of Bere-shis (Genesis), or (The First Book of Moses.), neither of the last 2 names could be found in the original Hebrew writings. My advice to translators is to follow the punctuation of this verse. It has in the original two simple declarative sentences. The versions all, save mine, run the two sentences into one, thereby making a compound sentence of it which destroys the thought of the writer. Now these men did not translate or bring over the THOUGHT because they did not comprehend the inspiration in it. It was over their head.

The first simple sentence is this: "For wisdom God makes". This is amply shown that man's advance in knowledge has been in proportion to the attention that God has made wisdomatically all. By paying attention to these things man has invented the steam engine, the telegraph, the telephone, flying machine and all household improvements, but he has always denied the source and called it "his hunch". He has denied God, in this manner.

Now all who think know that a "Church" cannot receive inspiration, for it cannot see, hear, feel. nor smell. These are the feelers of inspiration which kindle the INTUITION faculty of the mind, spirit. Hence a "Book" cannot truthfully be said 'To be inspired'. Because it is only a product of man with none of the above instincts, faculties, of the soul.

If religion and science had been taught to the students at the same time there never could have been a war between Science and Religion as there has been for the past two hundred years. Science can acclaim the above translation. Then it can applaude the next sentence which is a simple declaration of a fact now found true by Science, but the old did not understand: "Thus the spirituals in pairs and the material are being created". Science by its mechanical devices and gadgets has demonstrated that the 93 physical elements are duads (and counterparts of the spirituals in pairs).. The Hebrew word is a dual noun, which we do not have in English so it can only be translated by a circumlocution. Word for word transation does fit the thought.

So many scholars seem to think that the King James' Revision was made by a Committee of 47 scholars. It was not, for the forty-seven was divided into six Committees which met in Westminister, First Class composed of 10 men; and the 2nd Class was composed of 8 men. The 1st class met at Cambridge had 8 members, 2nd Class at Cambridge had 7 members. 3rd class meeting at Oxford had seven members, 2nd class of the third Class at Oxford had 8 persons, which shows it was unevenly done as is seen on the face of the work. So a one man's translation will be better than a company translation, as is shown in Jerome's work, and Farrer's translation, as well as Moffatt's and Kenworthy's.

Sovietizing Organized Labor

NEW YORK,— The public is being kept in the dark about a decided difference of opinion which has arisen—the first in decades— between English and American labor. The misunderstanding not only has the administration worried, but also is causing anxiety in organized workingmen circles lest it get out of control. Sir Walter Citrine, leader of the 6,000,000 members of the British Trades Union congress, cabled that he was coming to the United States in an attempt to swing the A. F. of L. into the recently formed Anglo-Soviet Trade Union committee.

President William Green, and Vice Presidents William Hutcheson and Matthew Woll, had heard about the overseas alliance, but were very much opposed to any similar liaison with the Communists by their federation. They support military aid to Russia, but have not changed their attitude toward the Red party. So they wired the Briton to stay home. Despite their suggestion he flew over and arrived in New York.

Insiders here say that the trio then deliberately snubbed the visitor by sending Bill Collins, a minor local A. F. of L. official, to greet the man whose influence among workers in the United Kingdom is second only to that of Bevin's. Sir Walter was so shocked that instead of hurrying on to the capital, he went into seclusion in a Manhattan hotel. The talk in the back rooms is that strong Washington pressure had been exerted on Green to join the Citrine tieup, but he refused to budge..

Taylor Cautions U. S Against Trying To Reform World

BOSTON,— Myron C. Taylor, who was President Roosevelt's personal representative at the Vatican, says that Americans should avoid trying "to reform the world and bend it to our way of thinking."

"To do that is to do only what our enemies are trying to do," he told the annual Massachusetts Conference of Christians and Jews.

"We can no more impose a pattern of thought on the world than our enemies can impose a pattern of thought upon us."

Describing the conference as "a public recognition in America that men of basic faith may dwell together in peace and harmony," Taylor added:

"I am not attracted by the one big family idea. Indeed I am suspicious of the man or woman who has no pride of religion or race.

"We must resist to the utmost the forcing upon the world of a single mode of thought."

Southern Baptists Ask Christian Peace

SAN ANTONIO,— Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex) and Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga), both prominent Baptist laymen, were petitioned by the Southern Baptist convention in a resolution to aid in the establishment of "a Christian peace in accordance with the will of God" at the conclusion of the World war.

Former Gov. Pat M. Neff, of Texas, reminded the convention that it had deliberated for five days in a hall not decorated with a flag, while many of its sons were fighting and perishing on world fronts to preserve the flag.

Earl Browder

NEW YORK, May 19— The presidential commutation of Earl Browder, chief of the Communist party and one of the foremost pro-axis collaborationists during the life of the Berlin-Moscow compact, establishes the principle that under American justice today the politics of a criminal may be weighed in his favor. This is a political commutation, as the White House statement admitted in the remark that Browder's liberation would have "a tendency to promote national unity". That was equivalent to saying that Browder was given his freedom so as to quiet the political clamor of his followers who, incidentally, are all sworn enemies of the form of government provided by the United States constitution.

Dear Leon:

How's THE BROOM factory functioning? Since I last heard from you it looked as if you had excited the displeasure of some of the excitabilities and THE BROOM would soon be no more than a shadow of its former self. You have some pretty good columns about the events of the day, but Social Justice was the best of all the bean spillers and its guns are spiked pro tempo.

If you have some late issues of THE BROOM on hand for emergency requests I wish you would send me 2 or 3 more.

If I hear favorably from you I will reciprocate with some Jim Farley and Rooseveltian stamps for survival of the press.

democracy

By Charles H. Ingersoll
(Of Dollar Watch Fame)

NEW YORK.—'Press Conferences' are now the connecting link between those unfortunates who have vast publicity forced on them and the mechanism—the printing press—through which it happens. In fact, almost anyone who is anyone nowadays seems to do most of his talking to the public through this convenient and impressive wholesale repertorial medium. Only occasionally do 'the boys' break over the imaginary lines of good form and have a heckling-bee which makes the interviewEE long for the old system .

Ingersoll

A leading columnist insists that what we need is not merely peacemeal settlement of the various labor issues, such as double time, closed shop, 40 hour spread the work, etc., but 'comprehensive legislation on the broad subject of labor relations'.

This sounds good, but the trouble is indicated (1) by the ill success of the NLRB, which was supposed to be what he specifies, and (2) that labor relations are 100% economcis, which is a science. And it is a new science which (a) is very little understood by our leaders, even of education, and (b) which being the science of division of wealth produced between the producers—labor and capital—demands enforcement of a natural law rather than piling up more such futilities as NLRB.

Labor relations are simple when interference, such as taxes that halve labor's wages, is removed. Unless this is done, what can be expected of any other remedy contrived by legislators. A bill of the type visualized by the columnist, he says has been before the Senate since December; but it is one of the dangerous straightjacket bills which approximate present needs, but leave the whole condition where it will return for resettlement when time brings change.

A member of the New York Board of Trade gets the floor to exploit his econmic illiteracy; and, of course, from there it is spread by 2500 newspapers, more or less.

So the bulk of the American public get a full dose of counter-education, with very little to offset it from our billionaire educational plant which has nicknamed Economics 'the dismal science', instead of setting it on a purely scientific base.

Mr. Seidman demands that the income tax be broadened—in fact be made to include all incomes.

He should know that wage, salary, and capital incomes are individually and privately earned, and therefore should not be taxed at all, while monopoly incomes, especially from basic natural resources, are not earned by any one, but by all people; and should therefore all be paid into the tax budget, which they would completely cover.

SEIZING LEGISLATIVE FUNCTIONS

You speak of it (confiscation of property) as being the only means of saving the government. On the contrary, it is itself the surrender of the government. Can it be pretended that it is any longer the government of the United States —any government of constitution and laws—wherein a general or a president may make permanent rules of property by proclamation? I do not say congress might not with propriety pass a law on the point, just such as Gen. Fremont proclaimed. I do not say I might not, as a member of congress, vote for it. What I object to is, that I, as President, shall expressly or impliedly seize and exercise the permanent legislative functions of the government.

Send an Honest Man to Congress !

de Aryan Opens Congress Race

Outlines Program

C. Leon de Aryan bases his candidacy on an eight-point program:

"1—I shall represent the interests of the taxpapyers against the tax-eaters even though I shall have to commit political suicide, as a tax-eater on the public payroll.

'No Rubber Stamp'

"2—I shall not be a rubber stamp or yes-man for the administration in power, neither will I play politics with national issues.

"3—I shall introduce the newest of new deals, namely, for a change and memorable distinction, I shall keep my oath of office and respect and protect the constitution of the United States, even as it was respected in those horse and buggy days.

"4—I shall not delegate my office to the executive or other politicians and their subordinates, nor peddle my vote for a mess of patronage.

CLASS WAR CITED

"5—I shall work for a revision of the Wagner labor relations act to terminate the class war by giving management equal rights and standing in law with employes. They are all Americans and entitled to the same privileges under the constitution.

"6—I shall introduce measures to the end that taxation shall no longer be used for punitive purposes, depriving citizens of their property in violation of the fifth amendment, 'nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.'

USURY RAPPED

"7—I shall propose measures to free the United States from bondage to usury, by immediately refinancing the outstanding debt at the conclusion of peace, to freeze the national debt, that it may not grow overnight, adding interest and compound interest, by issuance of non-interest bearing bonds as Abraham Lincoln financed the war between the states, which is the only constitutional method of issuing money and determining the value thereof.

"8—I shall protect the rights of all American citizens, regardless of their origin or nativity, religion or political affiliation or non-affiliation."

Good THOUGHT
Good WORD — Good DEED

"Thy Will Be Done In Earth . . "

THERE IS UNITY IN GOD ONLY

Mrs. de Aryan asked me whether I really was not disturbed over the impending indictment for sedition by the federal grand jury in Los Angeles. And I said: "You might think it funny, but I am not. On the contrary, I never felt more assured and at ease."

"But why are you not afraid? Suppose they put you in jail and stopped the paper from going thru the mails?"

"Look at the company I am keeping and you will understand."

"What do you mean?"

"I explained to you many a time that I don't own THE BROOM. I am merely an executive in charge of this paper to express the truth where others are silent or afraid. Being under orders my responsibility is limited. I am responsible for telling the truth, the burden of keeping up the work itself lays upon greater shoulders than mine. I am the Lord's servant. So, now, that they are tackling THE BROOM, I stand back, do my share and let them tackle the LORD HIMSELF and see how far they will get."

"Do you really believe what you are saying, or are you talking big for my benefit, whistling to yourself to keep up courage?"

"Do I look disturbed to you, or afraid?"

"That's just why I am asking, I would be scared to death, I couldn't take it and carry it the way you do."

"I am a veteran, you are a novice. You see, all I do is enter into the Spirit of God, into the very Bosom of Divinity. There is no fear and no hate in God's heart and so I hate nobody and fear nobody. I do my duty and am now watching curiously to see how those who are trying to suppress me are going to fare. I fear not Roosevelt, nor Biddle, nor the Japs, nor any power on earth regardless of how berserk they run. God is the only power I respect. To stand against HIM is disastrous, to stand with HIM gives me assurance and a clear vision. In HIS heart there is not hate for any of His children be they Jews or Japs. HE does not want the death even of a sinner. Think of the millions of years it took to produce this earth and the solar system till finally man came upon the planet. What a puny creature to set himself up against God and try to establish a rule contrary to HIS by force and violence. They are so ridiculous, it is pitiful. So I am waiting to see what will happen. I am in company with Socrates; with the nine Zoroasters who were crucified, the last of whom was Jesus; with men like Hus who were burned at the stake; in fact I am in the company of the early Christians who were thrown into the arena to the lions to divert the people's mind from the iniquities of the Roman tyrants and imperialists.

"Are you talking just figuratively?" asked Mrs. de Aryan, "or do you mean you are actually in their company?"

"Did you never hear of the Great White Lodge? The souls who ascended to divine spheres by purging themselves of earthly limitations and embracing the love of truth and principle in place of little self. These men and women are not dead, they are right here with us, keeping me company and encouraging me to go on and do likewise. Think of such isolationists as Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln."

"That's just what I want to know."

"When you tune in the radio to a forum broadcast are you not transplanted into the company of those minds who debate before the mike? That's exactly the case now. By telepathy I am in actual contact with those souls who encourage me to keep up the work and not be afraid of any political officeholders. They are mortals. They have power now, but their days are counted and God rules above them. They will have to answer to HIM how they kept their oath to the Republic. So, you see, I am safe. I live up to my oath and let the show go on."

"YOUTH" is a state of mind—not a time in life.
By George Starr White, M. D.

HORSES AND ENCEPHALITIS

LOS ANGELES,—A reader in Canada sent me the following, from the "Montreal Daily Star", of April 19, 1940:

"Horse Virus Affects Humans—Saskatoon (Canada) April 19, Three cases of human encephalitis in Saskatachewan last year were found to have been caused by the same virus which produces encephalomyelitis, dread brain-fever which in recent years has claimed thousands of prairie horses. This anonuncement was made yesterday by Dr. J. S. Fulton of Saskatchewan University Veterinary Science Department, under whose direction chick embryo vaccine, a preventative for the horse disease, is being manufactured.. Dr. Fulton expressed the belief that many cases of human encephalitis reported in the past have been caused by the encephalomyelitis virus. In almost every human case, the patient lived in rural areas where the horse sickness was present. Two of the human cases last year were fatal. It had been definitely established, said Dr. Fulton, that humans could contract the disease from infected horses. It was therefore essential that every possible step be taken to vaccinate Saskatchewan's horse population against a possible encephalomyelitis outbreak this year."

* * * *

This report interested me greatly, because I have had much experience with so-called encephalitis in humans. Before I left New York City, about thirty years ago, there was a terrible epidemic among humans there. Horses were the means of transportation then, and naturally there was a great deal of horses' droppings on the streets, which was constantly drying and blowing away. Of course persons breathed the dust of the excrement. The doctors decided the horses had some connection with the encephalitis epidemic and ordered that the animals must wear baskets to catch their droppings.

Dr. Geo. Starr White

One day a patient of mine in New Jersey, telephoned me that his child had a vomiting spell, and that one of the neighbors, hearing the child vomiting, had called the Health Department that the child had encephalitis, and should be taken to a hospital.

I was sure that the child had nothing but an upset stomach. I called one of my pupils and told him to go right over to this man's house, and see what he could do, as I could not get away just then. My pupil reached this man's house about the same time that the Health Department officer arrived. The pupil, and the child's father between them "persuaded" the officer to stay outside, while he examined the child. Sure enuf, it was only an upset stomac, and with some more strenuous "persuasion" on the part of my pupil and the child's father, the officer left. Within a couple of days the child was entirely well.

The reason I had been so sure this child was not a victim of the epidemic, was that I had given this patient a salve containing menthol, to use in his children's nostrils, and on their lips. I had discovered that persons so treated did not seem to "catch" the disease. This fact, and other observations, made me believe that the disease was carried in the air and "breathed in" thru the nose and mouth.

My experience in this and other epidemics, including "infantile paralysis" epidemics, was that, unless a person had had some inoculation recently, they did not "catch" the disease if a menthol or other essential-oil preparation was used on the lips and in the nostrils, and if they then breathed thru the nose.

Of course to be affected by this "disease in the air", a person's resistance had to be low—otherwise "everyone" would have "caught" it.
